

Fall 2018

The agricultural community of Fulton County, Ohio is excited to announce that Breakfast on the Farm (BOTF) is coming to our area! BOTF is a free public event hosted by OSU Extension, Fulton Soil and Water Conservation District and Ohio Farm Bureau to help people learn about modern food production practices and introduce them to the farm families who work hard to produce a safe, wholesome food supply for Ohio communities and the world.

On Saturday, June 15th 2019, Henricks-Krieger Dairy outside of Fayette, Ohio, along with more than 400 volunteers will provide breakfast and offer self-guided walking tours of their dairy farm. The goal is to introduce the non-farm public to the life and business of farming and give them an opportunity to learn where their food comes from before it arrives on grocery shelves. We will serve breakfast to an estimated crowd of 3,000 people and will educate consumers about the many ‘hats’ farmers wear, from stewards of the land to animal caregivers and food safety specialists.

We are seeking sponsorships to make this event possible. The budget for our event is nearly $35,000. Donations will be used to cover advertising, printing, food, and other supplies. All sponsors will be recognized on the web/social media, the volunteer t-shirt and the day’s program that each visitor receives.

A video of our 2015 BOTF event at Sandland Dairy in Swanton, Ohio is available to view at www.go.osu.edu/fultonbotf. The BOTF committee thanks you for your consideration to sponsor the Fulton County BOTF.

Sincerely,

Henricks-Krieger Dairy and the Breakfast on the Farm Committee
